The bench was created in association with the Equal Opportunities Commission of the Unipol Group insurance business and bears both the sentence “Love generates love and not violence” and 1522, the toll-free number that can be called for help and support by victims of violence and stalking.

CUBO is the Unipol Group company museum designed as a cultural sharing space. We present heritage, Unipol history and the social role of insurance, using the language of culture and art, since we know that culture is the best tool for social development, inclusion and dialogue.
